Ending the semester in gratitude: Tips from Filiberto Avila

WT College Assistance
Migrant Program
WEST TEXAS A&M UNIVERSITY™

Now that your first semester at West Texas A&M University is coming to an end, I highly encourage you all to reflect on all the great growth you all have made: academically, professionally, and personally. But as you're doing this, also think of those that have helped you get there: family members, friends, academic mentors, etc. Please think about writing a "Thank you" note or email to your professors to show your appreciation for their work this semester.

5 tips to be successful at WT (from Yadhira Avalos, CAMP Alumni '22):

1. There's time for everything.
2. Self-care is important, as well as mental health.
3. Don't beat yourself for the little things; ask for help.
4. Don't be afraid to put yourself first.
5. Have a good support system.

"The AMET conference was nothing like I expected. The speakers' stories were inspirational and unforgettable. They definitely taught me, as well as other CAMP Scholars, 'que si se puede' no matter what the circumstances are."

-Ana Ruiz

"My experience at the AMET conference was amazing. The various workshops helped me understand how big this program is and how important it was to those who were a part of it."

-Bryan Hernandez

"If you earn it, you deserve it."

-Rojelio Viramontez, AMET 2022

"The AMET Conference was an eye opening experience realizing the advantage I had as an Agriculture worker and the opportunities it opened for me in college."

-Juan Castaneda

"The AMET Conference was a great way to network with ex CAMP Alumni who each had their own unique story. Through their stories, they taught me that we are sometimes our own obstacles and it lies within us to accomplish our goals."

-Yudith Aranda
