

PANORMIA PROJECT

Essential reading before using this draft text

This highly provisional text is the work of many hands. The principal responsibility for its current state lies with Bruce Brasington, who manages the site, and Martin Brett (mb110@hermes.cam.ac.uk), who may well have misrepresented much information generously supplied by others, amongst whom Greta Austin, Linda Fowler-Magerl, Robert Somerville and Anders Winroth deserve special mention. It is an immeasurable distance away from a secure text, and every element in it is subject to constant revision. It is, therefore, very important to cite the text by the date of the version you used. The reading may well have been revised or rejected into the apparatus when next revisited; certainly errors are being detected and amended all too often. The compilers claim no copyright, but would be delighted to receive any further information on copies known or unknown from interested scholars.

Select Bibliography

Author: Ivo of Chartres (b. about 1040 d.1117). 2. Date: A. Fournier-Le Bras 2.95-97: Not before 1095 (about 1094-1095), because the Panormia depends on the Decretum; the Panormia, however, neither contains any canons of the important council of Clermont nor any documents which can be dated to the last years of the pontificate of Urban II; therefore the Panormia was also compiled around 1094, i.e. very shortly after the Decretum; B. Sprandel (1967): quite likely that a longer period of time elapsed between the compilation of the Decretum and the Panormia (cf. Sprandel, Ivo von Chartres 73 n. 61); cf. approving of this, Fuhrmann, Einfluß und Verbreitung 2.560 n. 372 but cf. the position adopted in Landau, 'Dekret' 34; C: Brett (San Diego) after 1095, possibly as late as 1110. Fransen (San Diego): possibly incomplete at Ivo's death. The bibliography below is a selection from that in L. Kéry, Canonical collections of the early middle ages (1999) 253-60, modestly adapted and enlarged.

Editions. 1) editio princeps: S. Brant (Basel 1499). From an unidentified and eccentric copy. The additions at ther end principally consist of 15 cc of Lateran II.

2) M. de Vosmedian (Louvain 1557); based on Brant, though V. knew of other copies

3) Migne, PL clxi. 1041-1344, from V. but with some manipulation.

Conventions used in the draft text

So far as there is a base ms. it is a microfilm of Pf, but the readings of the main text are usually those which conform to the agreement of the Cambridge and Victorine copies of Ivo's Decretum with the Molinaeus edition if there is a consensus (though sometimes variant readings of the Sigüenza or Palatine copies are taken to overthrow it), or to those of Paris Bibl de l' Ars. 713 where it is the only known possible source. An agreed ID reading is usually asterisked in the apparatus. Otherwise the selection of readings is largely uncritical. Where the consensus breaks down, or the source appears to be an unidentified form of the 4L, the selection of a reading is either random or based on a rough-and-ready judgement of the intended sense. The punctuation is partly inherited, partly adjusted to our sense of the meaning, partly a reflection of the scribes' interpretation, but there is nothing systematic or considered about any of it. The spelling has been crudely 'normalised', with no distinction between e.g. diphthong ae, tailed e and plain e, and the c/t distinction is more or less that of modern convention (it is often indeterminate in the microfilm). We usually use 'i' where the copies have between 'i' and 'y', prefer e.g. quodcumque to quodcunque, reduce capitalisation to a near minimum except for e.g. Deus, Filius etc, prefer eg. extirpit to exstirpit, though there is no such consistency in the copies.

The apparatus is broadly a positive one, since otherwise it would be unclear which copies have been checked, though the effect is often absurd. If no variant is noticed it may be supposed that CaMgPffTbTc agree, but nothing may be assumed of any other copy. Where a reading of Brant is noted without further comment, it should be assumed that Migne follows Brant; Vosmedian is only compared very rarely. The numbering of the canons is that of Migne, with A, B, C, etc used to distinguish canons omitted in the editions. Additional canons or passages currently only known from a small group of copies are inserted in smaller type where they are of special importance. Less apparently significant additions are only found in the apparatus. Canons omitted by Migne but found widely are printed in the standard typeface.

The formal source is generally noted at the foot of each canon, where it is known, but the material sources are virtually never noted. The appearance of some form of the canon in Gratian is usually recorded, even if sometimes it is near certain that Pan. is not the immediate source. Some of these references are taken over directly from the earlier editions, and are identifiable from their preserving the older form of reference; where they have been checked the c. no. is inserted in square brackets

Abbreviations and other guides to the text

The following abbreviations are used throughout (excluding the ms sigla in the list of Panormia mss).

4L = Collection in Four Books, as described by J. Gilchrist, 'The manuscripts of the Canonical collection in Four Books' ZRG Kan. Abt. lxi (1983)

A = Readings in canons found in Paris, Bibl. de l'Arsenal 713 B (for which cf Brett, 'The sources and influence'), interspersed with canons from Ivo's Decretum.

Ars. 713 = The same collection, as cited among possible sources at foot of a canon.

CCL = Corpus christianorum, Series latina

CSEL = Corpus scriptorum ecclesiasticorum latinorum

ID = The consensus of the editio princeps of Ivo's Decretum by Molinaeus from two lost copies in 1561 (IDm) with the copies in BN lat 14315 (IDp) and Cambridge, Corpus Christi Coll. 19 (IDc); other copies noted are BN lat. 3874 (IDb), Sigüenza Archivo de la Catedral 61 (IDs) and Vatican Palat. lat. 587 (IDd); for these see Landau, 'Das Dekret des Ivo von Chartres' ZRG Kan. Abt. lxx (1984). Note that Molinaeus sometimes offers variant readings in the mg. in larger type, apparently from his second copy, which are treated as significant, and conjectures from elsewhere in smaller type, which are ignored. Readings (or errors) introduced by Fronteau or Migne are also ignored.

JK, JE, JL = P. Jaffe, Regesta pontificum Romanorum (2 ed.) 1885, to AD 599, 882, 1198.

W = Wasserschleben's account of what is now Krakau Bibl. Jag. 613 in Beiträge zur Geschichte der vorgratianischen Kirchenrechtsquellen 61-77.

There are two useful incipit indexes. The only one in print is that at the end of Theiner's Disquisitiones (above), where Iv represents the Panormia, Ps.Iv the Decretum. A much fuller and more accurate one is found in Dr Fowler-Magerl's CD Rom, Kanones (2 ed.) available from her. This has also been used for the enlarged version of the Collection in Four Books, particularly as represented by BL Arundel 173.

This is a mere farrago. Dates of mss are taken from literature, even when startlingly inconsistent, unless ms actually seen, and not much better then. Earlier locations are not ultimate provenances. Literature means only refs in my notes from which the entry comes. Masses more evidently available.
